A Formal Letter.

Dear Guy of Gisborne,

I am writing to you today to apply for the role of City Guide.

Having this job would be quite an exciting and dynamic opportunity for me. One of the many reasons I should have this job is that I am very hard-working and determined in everything I do. I am a fun and joyfull individual that always finishes what start.

My experience includes other jobs in this business for exam
I ^{My experience of working} have worked in London, Cardiff and Edinburgh and I will pick up the roads of Nottingham too, soon. I am a loyal and conscientious worker and will always listen to you.

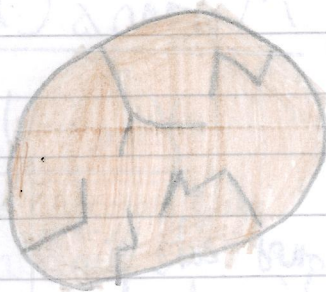

I ^{hopefully} hope that after all I have told you about me you can realize that I would be the best person for the job of Customer Service Assistant. I hope you can consider me for this job.

Yours faithfully,

Ollie Holgate

Gingerbread

Ingredients

- 350g plain flour
- 100g butter
- 5 1/2 teaspoons ground ginger
- 1 1/2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon bicarbonate soda
- 175g light brown soft sugar
- 4 tablespoons golden syrup
- 1 medium egg

Method

1. Firstly preheat the oven to 180°C
2. Secondly gather 350g of plain flour, 100g of butter, 5 1/2 teaspoons of ground ginger, 1 1/2 teaspoons of ground cinnamon, 1 teaspoon of bicarbonate soda and 175g light brown soft sugar then put them in a bowl in that order.
3. Now put your gingers into the bowl and rub till crumbly.
4. Next add your syrup and an egg yoke to your mix, don't get any of the shell in.
5. After that stir the mixture with a wooden spoon, make it into a ball.
6. Divide your mix into 15 equal pieces and place the pieces on a baking tray.
7. Now cook the gingerbread for 15 minutes

You have written good clear instructions.

Waking up from an uncomfortable sleep, Robin saw the bright, blue, cloudless sky above him and smiled, it was unarguably the most beautiful sight he had ever seen. Only one Outlaw other than himself was awake it was Will - Scarlet. As Robin wandered over to him he realised Marion was gone! So he told Will, and both men had a horrible feeling of dispair come over them, so they both ran off to find her. When they got back neither had seen her, then Robin cried out "No, no it can't be!" "SHE'S GONE!" ...

Hundreds of questions came flying out of the other Outlaws mouths and Robin did not know how to answer them, so he told them the truth, but he also told them not to worry. Later that day Robin needed to speak with Will, and Will needed to speak with him. His emerald shirt and hat, shining in the moonlight, Robin was listening to Will as he asked who had Marion, Robin did not know the answer but Will could see the anger and rage building up in his eyes the Robin just said "I'll go find out!" "But how?" Will replied but Robin was not listening. As the day ended Robin still had no questions answered.

Robin was just woken up by a squirrel. Being woken up by a squirrel was very unusual for Robin like it is for most people. The squirrel started to run and as Robin had no other hope of finding Marion he followed the brown, soft, cute squirrel, finally he came to a stop, in front of Robin was a tree with an unusually large hole in it. Looking inside of it Robin could not see an end it was a deep, dark pit of doom. Unfortunatly he fell in...

As Robin got to the bottom he fell down to his knees, then started to walk along the windy ancient road. The path was so long, so long so long. A glimpse of sunlight meant the walk was over, Robin was so relieved the walk was over.

Robin saw that Marion and someone else were trapped in cages, so he jumped out of the pit and to his surprise standing there armed and ready was the Guy of Gisbourne. Robin had to act fast so he aimed for the Guy of Gisbourne but then he looked at Marion and her eyes were full of sadness. Then Robin knew what to do he pushed the Guy of Gisbourne into the hold he came from and locked all the ways in and out. Then he unlocked Marion and he was full of joy once again and he also found out the someone locked up with Marion was the sheriff, so he kept him locked up.

After all Robin and the Outlaws had planned the great war was over in two minutes it seemed so easy to Robin, as he was always doing things the hard way. Robin was as free as a bird. As Robin looked at Marion and saw her hair glowing in the sun then Marion looked at him and they both smiled.

The Tree

The creaky, old door had not been opened for years. The Beast had always lived inside, but nobody dared to visit. Noises that echoed from gaps in the door had haunted those who heard them. Nobody knew what the narrow mossy steps led to. Nobody knew what was lurking within.

One day, the heavy, wooden doors slowly began to open with a groan...

The night before was cold and loud in the Outlaws' village; also it was the night two young Outlaws went missing! Angry and upset, the two boys ran as far away from their village as they could. As they did this, they both remembered how Robin Hood told them they were to wait to fight the Sheriff, and that only made them angrier! Suddenly the loud sounds of night became even louder and louder until finally both boys turned around and froze with fear as they were swept away by a fierce tsunami and that was all they remembered of that night.

Blazing like fire, the sun rose and the boys awoke. Aching, the frightened boys looked around to see the unfamiliar clearing the big wave had taken them to. Blood red leaves covered the wet ground and thin, brown trees surrounded the area with an unusually large one in the middle. Woodland creatures were creeping out of the trees and bushes, they had red creepy eyes that watch you night and day. As the boys slowly look around and as they did they saw a door in the tree so they began knocking on the door the boys remembered the tsunami could still be out there so they screamed "We don't have much time come with us now or you will die!"

The creaky, old doors had not been opened for years. The Beast had always lived inside, but the boys were unaware. Noises that echoed from gaps in the door had haunted those who heard them.

Nobody knew what the narrow, mossy steps led to. Nobody knew what was lurking within.

One day, the heavy, wooden doors slowly began to open with a groan, inside was what looked like a fierce beast, but no he was a kind a friendly soul, so right away he packed up his most important belongings, and left with the two boys named Tiny Tom and Teeny Tim but it was good they left when they did as straight after, the tree that the beast lived in for so long submerged into the water. So the beast and the boys ran as fast as they could until finally they turned a corner and they lost the tsunami and found the Outlaws village and after that it all went well because the boys were allowed to fight, and the beast could live with the Outlaws. So life was great for Tiny Tom and Teeny Tim.

Dear Diary,

Today has been horrible but before I tell you about that, I must say that recently my mother past to the other side. She would not eat and by the time me and my dad realised she was ill it was too late. Ever since then me and my father have hunted deers to give to the poor cos we don't want the same to happen to anyone else.

One dark, gierce night in the woods my father and I saw a deer and with one shot I killed it, I ran towards it but I was too, my father pulled my collar then, thump I was on the floor.

Two minutes later we were surrounded, frozen with fear I said to my dad what now. Run he told me I did not know what to do. NO! He then said. So I ran. I was not sure my heart would stay inside my body I found a cave and I hid inside it. Distraught and lonely was I felt, and then I heard something. A voice. A voice of an angel he is not dead the voice told me quietly. He was only taken away the voice told me. It was a girl she took me and said to me I'm Marion, I'm an outlaw, they are outlaws and so are you! That was my crazy day.
